Income tax is an area that is undergoing constant changes. In addition to changes brought about by new legislation, the income tax area is also influenced by changes in interpretation, new methodological guidelines issued by tax authorities and by the extensive case law of domestic and EU courts.

Review of income tax compliance

We will perform a review of compliance with respect to corporate income tax or withholding tax obligations.

The review will primarily cover the following areas:

- Verification of whether tax-deductible and tax non-deductible items were properly reflected during the tax base calculation, including an analysis pursuant to the ATAD directive of whether excessive borrowing costs were claimed;
- Review of typically problematic areas (costs incurred for group services, marketing costs, repairs vs technical improvements costs, commissions etc.);
- Check of how the company creates and releases adjustments to receivables and whether the requirements for a tax write-off of receivables were met;
- Review of whether tax depreciation of tangible and intangible assets was calculated correctly, including a review of issues relating to technical improvements to such assets;
- Review of those cost items where there is a potential risk with regard to the application of withholding tax (licenses, software fees, interest);
- Review of whether tax forms were filled out correctly.

Following our review, we will prepare a written analysis containing our findings and our recommendations for rectifying any issue discovered.

Main benefit of the expert review

The review will provide you with an opportunity to discuss disputable and problematic areas with our experts, thereby providing you with certainty that your company has complied with its income tax obligations in the proper manner.
